

How to pre handle every objection

The goal here is to get them to reveal their "in-action" that has been holding them back from doing something about their problem. Once you've done that, you need to attack and shift their belief that's stopping them. In other words, get them to want to take action now.

To find out their real limiting beliefs that are preventing them from taking action BEFORE you reach the pitch and drop the price, you need to ask the question...

"What have you done before to solve the problem?"

They may answer different things...

1. Tried something before

a. What results did you get?

b. Good results

i. "What was missing?"

ii. "How long ago was this?"

iii. Go to "Didn't do a thing"

c. Bad results

i. GIRLFRIEND/RESTURANT reframe

ii. "If you go to a restaurant and get food poisoning, does that mean you'll never go to a restaurant again? No, just that you'll never go to that particular restaurant, right?"

iii. "Your experiences and past mistakes make you better equipped to choose a better restaurant next time..."

iv. "Think about it this way... you can let them burn you once... but are you going to let them burn you a second time by preventing you from considering going again?"

v. "Why?"

vi. "How long ago was this?"

- vii. Go to "Didn't do a thing"
- 2. Talking to different companies right now
 - a. Gathering leverage...
 - b. "They're still good companies, what would you say is what you're trying to get across by talking to them?"
 - c. "Say you talk to everyone and you notice that everyone has generally the same price, what would you assume then... if you had to make a choice?"
 - d. If they HAVE ALREADY talked to different companies...
 - i. "Okay, what made you not go ahead with those companies?"
 - e. "Have you tried anything before?"
 - f. If yes, go to "Try something before"
 - g. If no, go to "Didn't do anything"
- 3. Tried everything myself (YT, free content)
 - a. You can't take this as a real answer
 - b. "Yeah, I get it, but if Youtube really worked, we would all be millionaires by now, what have you done to get professional help?"
- 4. Didn't do anything
 - a. Now you find out their belief that is holding them back
 - b. "What is it that has stopped you from doing something?"
- 5. You will probably get excuses...
 - a. Time/external
 - b. Show that it is not a problem
 - c. "There are many others (e.g. in our program) in your position (lack of time/other external), who even have a wife and children and a dog but still find time to achieve X outcome."
 - d. "So what do you think allows them to find time to achieve their goals?" (selling themselves on the idea)
 - e. "Then what has stopped you from finding time to achieve X outcome?"
- 6. Money

- a. "I get it, can I skip that thought for a second?"
 - b. "Our greatest superpower is to always be able to find a solution. But many people use that superpower to come up with why it is not possible to find a solution."
 - c. "People are really smart at finding ways to say 'I can't afford it,' but they forget to use that same smartness to find ways to actually afford it."
 - d. (our greatest superpower is to be resourceful, but most people use thier resourcefulness on how they can't be recourseful)
 - e. Basically frame it so that they understand that it's not the price of the solution that's the problem, but that they don't have the money that's the problem. What happens here is that many people realize that they actually have the money for it, which reveals the real fear.
 - f. "So what's been stopping you from getting the resources you need to solve X problem and get Y outcome?"
7. Didn't know about it before
- a. "Can I share a perspective?"
 - b. "Okay, so if we've been around this problem for X amount of time, whose responsibility is it to go out and find a way to solve it?"
 - c. "So what's stopping you from looking into and finding a solution to this problem?"
8. Just looking around/researching
- a. Here you just want to show them that it's actually clarity they need...
 - b. "How long?"
 - c. "So what's stopping you from diving into one of the things you've been looking into?"
 - d. "Okay, so you just need more clarity?"
 - e. "Can I share a perspective on what clarity actually... means?"
 - f. "You never know what the weather will be like at the beach tomorrow until you actually go there and see for yourself... so what's the only way for you to know if any of these solutions will work for you or not?"
 - g. "So what's really stopping you from diving in and seeing if it will work or not?"

9. Finally you get one of the real beliefs...

- a. it's not a priority/too lazy/too comfortable
 - b. Afraid - don't know if they'll make it
 - c. Think they can fix it themselves
10. "What do you mean by that?" (always) make them dig deeper
11. "Can I suggest something?"
12. Choose a route...

1. Direct attack on revealed belief

- a. "Can you see that (belief pattern) is keeping us in our current situation - and are you okay with me asking?"
 - b. If so... then they admit to themselves that this is a problem, the natural next step is to find a solution.
 - c. "What are we going to do to overcome this mindset so we can actually achieve X goal?"
2. If they admit that they need to change...
- a. "You don't have to change... what happens if you don't do anything?"

3. Add an identity frame here

- 1. With an identity frame we create an identity gap. We reveal that it's really about them wanting to be a better person but these beliefs are holding them back from doing so.
- 2. Is it maybe time to make a change?"
- 3. Or: Dig even deeper
- 4. "So where does it come from? Having that pain for X amount of time and letting (belief) keep you stuck where you are now?"
- 5. "So what do you feel it has cost you?"
- 6. (if it's not an ROI money sacrifice, you have to dig up other important topics- family, children, health, time)
- 7. About ROI...
- 8. "Do you mind doing the math... and looking at the numbers?"

9. Get out a calculator and multiply how much they said they are losing over time they have waited to take action.

4. ALWAYS get them to accept the amount

- a. "Does that amount sound right?"
- b. Also have a surprised/shocked tone and body language
- c. "So you feel that feeling/belief is worth holding on to if we want to reach X goal?"
- d. Why not?
- e. "Time for a change?"
- f. "What happens if you don't do something then?"

5. Add an identity frame

- a. Right now we have a numbers gap. They want to reach a sum but we reveal that these beliefs are keeping them in their current painful situation.
- b. With an identity frame we create an identity gap. We reveal that it's really about them wanting to become a better person but these beliefs are holding them back from doing so.
